

New Year poem by Asher Stevenson (aged 10)

Another year has gone by, and you are older than you were Winter deep and summer high, new life and death on earth
We remember still the year before, and nothing we forget
We wonder if our years will be more, for we are not gone yet
    Another year has gone by, by the will of Christ
And we know that He decides, when we start new life.