

War

The cruel relentless cries from war
That breaks a heart to the very core
The grieving tears of loss so great
Sadness and pain, which afflict heartache

Sorrow as a loved one, breathes their last breath
Families shattered by the ripples of death
Of the injured bodies which may never mend,
And the mental torment that does not end

There are children left alone, it's true
Death of a loved one, they never knew
Is there no way, for these wars to cease?
What can be done to bring forth peace?

There are many names carved, and firmly set
On pillars of stone, so as not to forget
Names of the courageous, who died for us
Who went to war ready, without any fuss

There's a silence of pain, as we stand deep in thought
To stop and respect all the brave that had fought
The agony of hurt which they had to endure
Let us honour them now, who kept us secure.

Yet a battle still rages, which we're all in
A daily battle, and it's called sin
A spiritual war which we must fight
So keep God firmly, fixed in your sight

Never give in, fight this battle with zest
For there's no time to spare, or to take any rest
Be on your guard, both day and by night
Seek out the Lord God by serving Him right

There's one whose looking for souls to steal
Satan the enemy whose active and real
Yet if you come to know the Lord Jesus today
You will know that your safe, in every way

This battle's been raging, since before we were born
It rises up swiftly, at the beginning of each dawn
So put on God's armour to save and protect you
And trust in his promise, for He's faithful and true

So let us be prayerful, steadfast and strong
And not to give in, to that which is wrong
A God who will save us, if we're on His side
So let's serve Him only, with love and much pride

Irene Talman
2011